

Long Island Language Teachers, Inc. maintains a stance opposed to racism and discrimination. We stand in solidarity with all fighting against inequality. LILT is dedicated to supporting our teachers, students, schools, and communities as we promote and celebrate differences. While we remain committed to providing educational opportunities to World Language, ENL and ASL educators, it is important to pause and take time to educate ourselves and work towards social justice.

World Language, ENL, and ASL teachers can provide classrooms that are culturally competent and responsive, serving a critical role in the education of an adolescent. Within our local community, state, and nation, we see diversity among those uniting against racism. LILT is committed to eradicating inequality in education; we need diverse, safe, and welcoming classrooms that are connected to the community, in the name of students, teachers, and the greater good.
